LOCKED THIS WEEK

Priya / Cursor — $85k Tue onsite

AT RISK THIS WEEK

Sarah / Inworld — $64k window closing

Jordan / Anthropic — $74k counter incoming

NEXT DECISION DUE

Sarah / Inworld — Friday EOD

NOW 2

RISK Sarah Okonjo · Senior Account Executive @ Inworld — 2h

Sarah's window is closing

9 days post-final. Counter-offer playbook from Scale typically lands day 12–14. You have 3–5 days before her calculus shifts and the deal becomes a coin flip.

→ Next move Call Mara at Inworld this morning. Get a time-bound verbal offer by Friday.

RISK Jordan Reyes · Enterprise AE, Strategic @ Anthropic — 4h

Jordan offer stage — 48h window

Offer extended 3 days ago. OpenAI retention typically pings within the week. Parallel process at a Series B is also live. Right now is the protection window.

→ Next move Lock references today. Schedule resignation-prep call for Monday — assume the close.

GAP Chad Liu · Enterprise AE, Strategic @ Anthropic — 6h

Lock Chad's comp before second round

Chad is in 2nd round with no expected comp captured. The panel he's heading into typically produces an offer. Walking into offer stage without his number is the textbook way to lose a deal you should win.

→ Next move Text or call Chad. "What does the right number look like for this to work?"

OVERDUE Mike Tran · Senior Account Executive @ Inworld — 1d

Inworld has gone cold on Mike — 14 days

Mike's been submitted 14 days with no movement. Inworld is fixated on Sarah. Either get a real read on him or release him cleanly — he has two other processes warm.

Vercel role may not be real this quarter

11 days silent on Elena. No interviews moved in 14 days on the role. This is the pattern of a role losing internal conviction. Diagnose or move on.

PUSH Run hard

Sarah is the closest thing to a sure thing on this desk and the deal is bleeding heat. Inworld has had her sit for nine days post-final without movement, her current employer just gave her a retention chat, and she's started using softer language about timing. She still wants this — the pull toward smaller co + equity is real — but the longer the silence runs, the more her calculus shifts. The window is now.

RISK

Counter-offer from Scale lands in 5–7 days based on their playbook. If we hit the silence window past Friday she'll start interviewing elsewhere out of self-protection.

WHAT KILLS IT

An offer at the bottom of band ($240k base) with no equity acceleration. She'll take the counter and ghost.

→ Next move Call Mara at Inworld today. Get a verbal time-bound offer by EOW.

"Wren, who needs me right now?"

WREN · NOW

Sarah's Inworld window closes Monday — that's the one that matters this morning. Jordan's offer is out and the next 48 hours decide whether it sticks. Chad's comp still isn't locked and he's heading into the panel that produces an offer.

Marcus is fine, he can wait. Everyone else is background.

NOW PUSH Sarah · Inworld

Call Mara today. Time-bound offer by Friday.

Jordan said yes verbally. The next 48 hours decide whether it sticks.

Offer went out Tuesday. She's enthusiastic but hasn't signed. OpenAI retention typically pings within the week and a parallel process at a hot Series B is still live. This isn't a selling moment — it's a protection moment. Remove every reason to wait.

IF THIS FALLS THROUGH

Chad Liu is in second round on the same role and his comp is now locked at $325k TC. He's a HOLD verdict today, but if Jordan walks he's the natural fallback — keep his process moving regardless. Don't let Anthropic pause his pipe waiting on Jordan's signature.

→ Keep Chad's panel scheduled for Wednesday regardless of Jordan's decision.

3 · HERE'S WHAT I HEARD

You're running 9 active deals across 5 roles. Two are at offer-or-near-offer stage and need protection this week — Sarah at Inworld and Jordan at Anthropic. Two are cold and need a real read or a clean release — Mike at Inworld and Elena at Vercel. One has a comp ambiguity that will surface at the worst possible time — Chad at Anthropic, second round, no number captured. The other four are healthy.

I'll work this list every morning before you sit down. You'll see what needs you, why, and what to do — three things, sometimes one. If I get something wrong, tell me and I'll learn your patterns.
